

Bank of Toccoa

This building was home to a variety of drug stores, including Toccoa, Sorrells, and Smith-Maddox. It has also been several clothing stores and service businesses as well as a hair salon and jewelry store. The building was the original home of the Bank of Toccoa, now known as First Citizens Bank.

The building exhibits unique arts and crafts style masonry elements such as the windows that are defined by a series of soldier courses with sandstone corner accents. This design stands out as one of the more unique historic downtown commercial buildings.
